Welcome & Introductions
Commissioner Paul Savas & Mayor Brian Hodson, Co-Chairs

Motion to move “County Road Maintenance Funding” to the first agenda item.

Mayor Knapp motioned and Councilor Perry seconded. Motion approved.

City members expressed concern about the County’s process to pursue city support for the upcoming county road maintenance funding fuel tax measure that the Board of County Commissioners (BCC) plan to place on the November 2016 ballot. Concerns from the cities included: frustration about the language in the Inter-Governmental Agreement (IGA) requiring cities to sign a resolution of support to participate in a percentage share of the revenue, equity for citizens in cities where cities might not sign a resolution of support, concern about the word “support” within the IGA and lack of clarity about how “support” might be interpreted, and frustration about how the IGA was created.

Attending commissioners replied to the concerns by citing the reasoning behind the County’s approach, namely that the cities requested in June for an IGA to exist and that, politically, support by the cities would be required for the proposed measure to have the possibility of passing. Commissioners also responded to cities by committing to bring back to the BCC a proposal to eliminate the IGA language requiring a resolution of support, and to remove the language of the word “support” in the IGA.

C4 Retreat Recap
C4 staff briefly recapped the retreat and outlined the outcomes, namely:

Housing:

• Bring back an outside (non-public) panel of presenters to a future C4 meeting to increase education on available resources
• Create a C4 Land Use Advisory Subcommittee (LUASC) (comprised of staff) to review discussion and bring back to C4 options for county-wide coordination and support.

Transportation:

• Work towards a more formalized process of coordination amongst Clackamas County jurisdictions to increase project competitiveness during grant cycles
• Create a more formalized project ranking list, after first discussing the subject of agreed upon criteria
• Discuss funding alternatives for local projects, which all currently compete for the same, limited funding streams

C4 staff sought approval by city members to reach out to city staff to support with the member makeup of the LUASC. C4 members voted to approve.

C4 members requested clarity about when the LUASC would report back to C4 and debated the type of work product they would produce (policy implementation vs staff recommendation). C4 staff clarified that the direction from the C4 retreat was for this group to remain a staff level body that would only be recommending possible policy options that C4 would have the option to pursue or not. The earliest the LUASC would return with a recommendation is December 2016.

Transportation Project Coordination
Karen Buehrig, Clackamas County Transportation Planning Supervisor, presented an outcome by the C4 Metro Subcommittee regarding “guiding principles” for coordination to support Clackamas jurisdictions applying for funding in the Metro Transportation Improvement Program/Regional Flex Funds Allocation (MTIP/RFFA). While seeking feedback from C4 about whether the larger C4 body agreed with principles and whether C4 would be interested in pursuing similar coordination principles for other funding opportunities, confusion occurred when members began seeking clarity about why C4 was being asked to “agree and approve” what the C4 Metro Subcommittee had already approved. Staff offered that the C4 Metro Subcommittee was a subcommittee of C4 and that only the full C4 could approve actions. Cities countered that the subcommittee level was the proper venue to make decisions as those decisions only concerned the membership of the subcommittee, not the entire C4 membership. Conversation halted when the bylaws did not provide clarity to this point, and members agreed the bylaws required attention to address this question.

2016 Retreat

Retreat Summary

Friday, June 24

Session 1: Transportation Coordination Panel: The Importance of Coordination!

A panel of speakers from the ODOT, Metro, and Washington County shared information and strategies related to funding streams, tools, and coordinating models to encourage new ideas for funding regionally agreed upon transportation projects. Presenters included Elissa Gertler from Metro, Andrew Singelaklis from Washington County, and Kelly Brooks from ODOT.

Session 2: Transportation Coordination Exercise: What could coordination look like in Clackamas County?

In response to the 2015 C4 Retreat goal to “create a general, countywide prioritization list as a review mechanism for transportation projects being submitted for STIP, MTIP, TIGER, etc.”, Clackamas County teamed up with staff from other Clackamas County jurisdictions to create and rank a draft list of transportation projects that have “county-wide significance”. C4 members considered the value of this tool and exercise amidst other discussions related to county-wide coordination on transportation needs.

C4 members divided into groups and discussed different elements of coordination and their experience with the prioritization exercise. Members concluded the exercise represented a step in the right direction towards a model that Clackamas County (and C4) might use to prioritize countywide projects for funding, but that more work needed to be done.

Session 3: Affordable Housing Presentation and Goal Sharing: What are the needs and where do they exist?

County staff shared details about the range of housing needs in and around Clackamas County, ranging from houselessness to housing services to the “missing middle” to high value, single family development. There were many questions for the presenters, which did not leave enough time to transition into the “goal sharing” component of the agenda.

Session 4: Housing Information and Coordination Session: What can we do?
This session provided opportunities to learn more about specific areas of interest within the “Affordable Housing” conversation and helped C4 reach consensus about achievable next steps and tools available to local jurisdictions. Breakout tables included discussions on Houselessness, Affordable Housing Needs and Services, and Development and Housing Affordability.

Session 5: Goal Setting for the 2016 C4 Agenda

C4 members reviewed the topics from the weekend and shared hopes and expectations for moving forward. These included:

Housing:

- Bring back an outside (non-public) panel of presenters to a future C4 meeting to increase education on available resources
- Create a Clackamas Land Use Advisory Committee (made of staff) to review discussion and bring back to C4 options for county-wide coordination and support.

Transportation:

- Work towards a more formalized process of coordination amongst Clackamas County jurisdictions to increase project competitiveness during grant cycles
- Create a more formalized project ranking list, after first discussing the subject of agreed upon criteria
- Discuss funding alternatives for local project, which all currently compete for the same, limited funding streams

Oregon Department of Transportation

Dear Mr. Garrett:

We are concerned about the potential reduction in Congestion Mitigation Air Quality (CMAQ) funds to the Portland metropolitan area as a result of the inclusion of new areas in Oregon that are eligible to receive CMAQ funding. We specifically believe it is essential to take into account the level to which an area has developed plans to reduce air pollution related to mobile source emissions and have adopted performance measures that are able to demonstrate the effectiveness of the projects funded by the CMAQ funds.

The CMAQ distribution strategy should focus on the reduction of mobile source related pollution. It also should be directed to areas that have adopted proven strategies that reduce emissions and meet requirements by focusing on transportation related issues.

It will be important for the distribution policy to consider transportation-related air quality factors in the allocation of CMAQ funds. Examples of these factors are:

- The source and severity of air pollution and the ability of transportation projects to make a significant impact on reducing the pollution;
- The identification of performance measures that report on the effectiveness of the projects to reducing pollution;
- How an area’s local air quality management plan aligns with the local transportation plan;
- Population and employment; and
- Traffic congestion

Given the heavy congestion that exists in the Portland urbanized area, as well as severe limits on funding for new road capacity, Clackamas County has sought funding from all sources for projects to reduce idling and enable reliable traffic movement. Using CMAQ funds provided by Metro and ODOT, Clackamas County has been very successful in implementing Intelligent Transportation System projects to reduce delay at critical bottleneck locations throughout the county and improve air quality. Non-CMAQ funds have been used for projects like Sunrise Phase I which reduce freight congestion and truck idling. Clackamas County and its partners in the Portland urban area have committed to funding projects that reduce air pollution through a variety of strategies. The proposed reduction of CMAQ funds will hamper our ability to continue implementing such strategies.
CMAQ funds should be focused in areas where there will be the greatest impact of reducing transportation related emissions. This strategy will best address reducing transportation emissions statewide. As the federal level moves to a stronger focus on performance-based outcomes, our state should focus on policy and funding decisions that improve our statewide performance, rather than hurt it.

Thank you for the opportunity to share our comments on this very important issue.

Sincerely,

RE: Concern over proposed CMAQ funding redistribution

Dear Director Garrett:

As Mayor of the City of Wilsonville, which operates South Metro Area Regional Transit (SMART), and as the Clackamas County Cities Representative to Metro’s Joint Policy Advisory Committee on Transportation (JPACT), I am writing to express concerns regarding a potential reduction in Congestion Mitigation Air Quality (CMAQ) funds for the Portland metropolitan area.

CMAQ funds are a major component of the region’s flexible transportation funding resources and have long been used by the region to leverage significant local and federal matching investments in projects directly benefitting air quality in the most populated and congested area of Oregon. A substantial reallocation of these funds to other jurisdictions would irreparably damage the region’s ability to pursue a comprehensive, multi-modal transportation investment strategy that meets the state and federal air quality mandates placed on the region and pending “Climate Smart” carbon-reduction strategies.

I would advocate for a strategic approach to the allocation of CMAQ funds that reflects the original purposes for which CMAQ funding was created; namely, the need to reduce mobile-source air pollution levels that either currently cause or in the past have caused areas to receive a federal nonattainment designation, such as the greater Portland area. CMAQ funds should not be allocated to areas of the state due to the presence of pollutants that are largely or wholly unrelated to mobile-source emissions. Similarly, areas that have not implemented their own local efforts to address and monitor air pollution from mobile-source emissions and rely predominately on the actions of the state (DEQ) or federal government should not be eligible for receipt of CMAQ funds.

The Portland area qualifies for the receipt of CMAQ funds as it is still under a management plan after being designated as a nonattainment district in 1991. In response, the region has adopted a funding plan under which CMAQ funds are allocated to projects and programs designed to ameliorate the specific mobile-source pollutants that precipitated the area’s nonattainment designation. On a practical level, this means that CMAQ monies spent in the Portland region result in a planned, specific, intentional reduction in Oregon’s mobile-source air pollution emissions while seeking to maintain economic activity that greatly benefits the region and state.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Tim Knapp, Mayor
City of Wilsonville
