

Clackamas County's Health Equity Zones

According to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's County Health Rankings, Clackamas County is ranked the 2nd healthiest county in Oregon. However, Clackamas County is one of the most geographically and economically diverse in the state. As a result, county-level data does not show the health inequities, quality of life, and social & economic issues that local communities are facing. By sharing relevant local data the Public Health Division has the opportunity to engage community partners in more meaningful ways through the use of Public Health Zones. The Health Equity Zones serve as a tool for residents, policymakers, community-based organizations and businesses to address the unique needs of the communities located in each of the zones.
